About Thalassotherapy

The term "thalassotherapy" covers a variety of beauty, health and skincare treatments involving sea water and marine minerals, which were originally developed in seaside spa towns (such as Roscoff where Thalado is based) on the French coast in the 19th century.

These marine-based treatments are based on the idea that the minerals and trace elements in sea water, such as magnesium, potassium, calcium sulphates and sodium, are absorbed through the skin.

Treatments such as those contained in the Thalado product range are thought to boost the body's blood and lymph circulation, accelerating the metabolism and promoting the elimination of toxins.
